

Tim
5/4/14

Navigation proves to be very effective. User is able to navigate successfully and find all fields. Unsuccessful commands proved to be superfluous and had an available workaround to them anyway.

The user found difficulty distinguishing the gallery pictures in the table when told to find one of a specific count. The user received the artfulness of the site very well finding it in no way to inhibit his usage or navigation of what was requested.

Unfortunately the same nav bug that occurred with test subject Ed was still persistent and considered an issue and very distracting.

It is concluded that the website is generally effective and understandable successfully achieving the functionality and focus desired.