Navigation proves to be very effective. User is able to navigate successfully and find all fields. Unsuccessful commands proved to be superfluous and had an available workaround to them anyway.

The user found the most difficulty in selecting photographs and a display error that occurred within the nav for his particular browser.

It is concluded that the website is generally effective and understandable successfully achieving the functionality and focus desired. To remedy the gallery table selection issue we will seek to implement new, corrected hover or on click effects that maximizes the image without needing to “view image” in a new window.
