Jaaka
5/4/14

       Navigation proves to be very effective. User is able to navigate successfully and find all fields. Unsuccessful commands proved to be superfluous and had an available workaround to them anyway.

       The user found difficulty distinguishing the gallery pictures in the table when told to find one of a specific count. This individual is particularly intelligent or adept at this particular form of styling as he found no problems, or quickly adapted to our style of coding.

       It is concluded that the website is generally effective and understandable successfully achieving the functionality and focus desired.